Superior Line Gives Red Elephants 14-0 Win as Big Blue Makes Valiant Stand

By MARVIN N. GAY
A superior Alabama eleven over-powered a fighting gang of Kentucky Wildcats by a score of 14 to 0 Saturday afternoon on Stoll Field. A homecoming crowd of 18,000 fans saw the "Red Elephants" score two touchdowns and two extra points in the second half to defeat their traditional rivals for the fourteenth consecutive time.

In the first half, Alabama's Crimson Tide, 2 to 1 favorites, penetrated time and again deep into Kentucky territory only to be repulsed by the snarling 'Cats. Four times Chet Wynne's boys held the undefeated Crimson eleven while in the shadows of their own goal posts.

As expected, it was the difference in the two lines that finally decided the game. The Alabama line constantly out-charged the heavy Kentucky line throughout the game. The Wildcat eleven never had a chance to unleash its offensive during the first half. Their own 35-yard line was as far as they were able to advance during this opening period. Three times, Bob Davis was forced to punt from behind his own goal line.

When the half ended with the teams deadlocked in a scoreless tie, the hopes of Kentucky fans were flying high. They, for the first time in years, sensed a great upset. With the start of the second half, these hopes were rudely dashed. Kentucky kicked off to start the quarter, and Frank Thomas' boys did not relinquish the ball until Joe Riley, 150-pound track star, had dashed through Kentucky's left tackle for 26 yards and a touchdown. Kilgore's place kick of the extra point was good.

This unexpected touchdown seemed to make the 'Cats still more ferocious. A few plays after the first Alabama touchdown, Walter Hodge recovered Riley's fumble on Kentucky's 24-yard line.

With Johnson running in his sophomore form, the 'Cats began a steady advance down the field. Bert made a beautiful 27-yard dash to put the Kentucky eleven in scoring territory. The 'Cats were aided still more when Alabama was penalized 15 yards for tackling Johnson out of bounds.

This gave Kentucky a first down on Alabama's 8-yard line. On the next play, Hodge was thrown for a loss on an attempted reverse. Johnson then hit tackle for three yards. Davis was held to a one yard gain. On fourth down, Johnson smashed into the 'Bama line but the ball came to rest a foot from the goal line.

Alabama then punted out of (Continued on Page Four)

DEMOCRACY AT THE CROSSROADS

High in the heavens are signs that nations which have been faithful to liberty and scientific spirit have made better headway through the chaos of depression than those who have surrendered their thinking and freedom into dictatorial hands.

Fascists and Communist dictatorships have created tyrannies not only over the body but over the mind — the real test of tyranny — one in the name of proletarian freedom, the other in the name of racial solidarity and power. We do not believe that these reactions toward barbarism which are sweeping the world can be or will be permanent.

The most hopeful sign for the preservation of Democracy in America today is the faith that the people are placing in the fundamental principles of civil, economic and political liberty. This movement is not strictly confined to American soil. Men and women everywhere are now in a position of authority with respect to the formation and guidance of public opinion, and through it, to the control of the conduct and policies of government.

Democratic principles are being challenged and flouted, not only in Russia, in Germany, in Italy, in Austria, in Spain and elsewhere, but here in the United States. Is this admitting a weakness in the Democratic form of government?

Like any form of government outside of Utopia, we believe that Democracy is by no means perfect. One of its outstanding faults is its connection with capitalism. As we scan the scene, we see Democracy and capitalism faring well together or going downhill together. Far from being deadly enemies, they have a common cause.

Soviet Russia has been most outspoken in telling capitalism where it "gets off," and Soviet Russia is the place with the least trace of Democracy. Italy and Germany have experimented with a modified capitalism and have found it necessary to modify democracy almost out of recognition. The fact that capitalism has been synonymous with Democracy is then, a weakness within the system.

Soon it will be necessary to decide whether we shall restore a truly democratic state of the original sort or go on to the corporative, totalitarian state, or to state socialism.

The foundations of the original democratic state rest on the abolition of privilege, the equality of opportunity, and the utilization of ability. The ideal democracy would be one embracing these fundamental principles with the Christian ideals of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and the infinite value of every human soul in the eyes of God. We cannot hope to achieve such perfection, but we can hope to achieve a Democracy of the sort that our forefathers dreamed of; the extending of the rights of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" to the masses of the people.

The United States will succeed in checking the rising tides of the doctrines which, while criticizing the democratic institutions on account of their alleged weakness, are not likely to insure sound political stability. The necessity we have faced for emergency measures to bring the world out of the depression is not likely to doom the "era of Democratic rule." Democracy, at the crossroad of its career, will survive. It is the only logical answer to the problems that the world is facing today.

COLLEGE STUDENTS AND THE TWENTY-SECOND AMENDMENT

College students are faced after commencement with offers of position for which they have not been trained, and which could be as capably filled by any uneducated man or woman. In the fields of government and public service, where the need is for outstanding, educated, and intelligent young men and women, such students find that most of the doors are closed to them due to political patronage, vote-buying, and party favoritism.

In the past few years, jobs in the Civil Service have increased by the hundreds of thousands, and there should be an increasingly large proportion of offices opened to trained students, who have specialized in their fields, and have demonstrated their ability by their work in their respective universities. Instead we find these offices filled by men and women whose only qualification consists of being in favor with their party. The result is inefficiency in government, and the waste of millions of dollars.

Feeling the need of placing as many government jobs as possible on the basis of merit, the National Civil Service Reform league, a non-partisan and non-profit making organization founded in 1881, has proposed the twenty-second amendment to the Constitution, which states that "Appointments and promotions in the civil services of the United States shall be made according to merit and fitness, to be ascertained, so far as practicable, by examination, which, so far as practicable, shall be competitive."

Every candidate for Congress has been asked by the League to commit himself on the amendment, in principle, either for or against. The members of the League, described as "a public spirited group, comprised largely of young men and women who have schooled during the boom days; who have struggled through the depression...determined to win America away from the spoilsmen" are now working to enlist the interest of American people everywhere, believing that potentially it is the "greatest constructive influence on American youth today."

Those of us who face graduation must recognize the importance of this amendment as it will affect our chances for accomplishing successful work in the field of public service. Merit, we believe, should replace the spoils system. Careers in government should be open to those most capable of fulfilling them. With the adoption of the twenty-second amendment we will see greater prestige in those careers, and huge sums will be saved from graft and from inefficient spending by those officials who have received their appointments for no other reason than that they are members of a victorious party.

The ultimate success of the League depends upon the strength of numbers. We who are to be affected most by the amendment it is proposing should be among the first to contribute to its support, among the first to offer our active interest in its program and workings.

THEO-RIES:

WHAT

would people do on Saturday night if there were NO shows, NO dances, and NO places to buy cokes?

DO YOU

think they might sometimes just sit down and get wise to themselves?

I WONDER!

DON'T YOU FEEL FUNNY—

1. When they tell you your roommate has the measles?
2. When you hug the wrong man in your excitement at the football game?
3. When you get that long-hoped for letter from home — only there's no check in it?
4. When you sit down, gingerly balancing a cup of tea, and discover that there isn't any chair there?
5. When you walk into Cedar Village on Sunday morning and find that everybody else is ordering tomato juice too?

This Campus and That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

When, several years ago, I wrote concerning women and their rights as people one pretty little girl bore down upon me in the hall that afternoon, and, pushing her hat back on her head, proceeded to tell me a thing or three. "What do you mean by saying that women have to stay in the kitchen all of the time?" she demanded.

Actually I said no such thing—I must insist right now that I can't stand the thoughts of the pretty things slaving in kitchens all day long. No, I can't even stand seeing them work all day long. They are by far, too decorative, but I did say there was enough to do in every home (not kitchen, mind you) to enable every woman to display talent she may have acquired, whether it be for science, business or art.

Of course, my major premise was that women are looking down to the place occupied by men and desiring to be there beside them. While I mentioned that woman's place is in the home, I also insisted that her station was one above men — way above them. It is the women in this world who will desire us, bear us, rear us, inspire us. Without your mother your very foundations will be weaker, without the inspiration of the love some girl has for you your ambitions may be sadly lacking.

But I have been over that once before. Today I have another matter. This same little girl who had got her feathers up over the article I wrote is now the inspiration behind the "Popularity Clinic," sponsors of the "Charm School," a swell idea.

A circular gotten out by this Popularity Clinic says, in part: "You see, we figured that, after all, we gals are all trying to discover what type we are and how to make the most of it. So that is exactly what the Popularity Clinic is going to do—give us some new dope on care of our skin, style, and care of hair, personality types, art of conversation, and clothes for all occasions."

That sounds swell to me. I hope the speakers are inspirational. I hope they take steps forward, but in the right direction. It is all well and good to know how to care for the skin. It has been said that a woman's hair is her crowning glory. That still goes. Hair properly groomed adds a hundred fold to the attractiveness of young women, and old.

Ease and self-assurance is vital. I didn't realize that women were without the quality. Brilliant conversation, smare, not expensive, clothing will go a long way to make up for any other deficiencies a girl may have. But please, dear little girls, don't stop at the end of four lectures. Go on. Obtain the services of some of the "home ec" teachers who may be able to lead you into the paths that will take you back home. Let them explain to you how your talents may be employed there. Perhaps you may find out that there is a real thrill in the achievement of making a part or all of your own clothes. You may thrill to learn that you can make them with less expense of time and money than you first dreamed of.

Perhaps each of you have attempted fudge making. Now find out that a study of chemistry and physiology will make better cooks of you. Will save you steps in the kitchen and have you out of doors sooner. Surely you could not help but glow with pride over a perfectly done roast of beef. Few compliments are more appreciated than those given by a satisfied diner.

Oh boy, what a swell chance to learn all there is to know about men. You might learn that men are creatures of three stages. First a man will be interested in you. Then is when you must know about the care of your skin, hair, how to converse, how to maintain that love you have kindled in him.

When that same man has attained middle age he will concentrate on the dinner table. By then your knowledge of foods will help keep him satisfied and at home at night. Of course there is never a time when men won't appreciate good hearty meals, but in his early life it will at best be an interest divided. Now that he is fifty, and better looking than ever, he will center his attentions on food.

Now that you have gotten him safely along the road to the point where he is about to enter his dotage he will have to be nursed. Who better can nurse this man than you who have known this man crossed between heaven and hell? There will be those medicines to humor him along. He must keep himself well regulated. You will make him think that he is.

And never will you have time to neglect yourself. As you age along with him and your hair turns to silver you will have to constantly maintain an ageless appearance. He may grow old, but you must never.

Don't ask women to do all of your lecturing. Women don't always know about these things. There are many men who have a far better concept of the whole thing. For instance, ask Professor Farquhar to come and talk to you. There will be real inspiration in that talk I assure you—you know it!

No one I know of can better tell you how to be perfect hostesses than Mrs. McVey. Last night you found that out if you were not already aware of it. Provided you have absorbed all she has told you you will know how to make uneasy persons feel right at home, at ease.

I'm all for you, Charm School. I hope you profit by your lessons. There isn't a girl in school who could help learning something from the courses offered.

And to the lovely little lady who is working so hard to make this clinic a success, I offer one of Theodore Nadelstein's Campusalutes!

Alumna, Alumnae, Alumnus, Alumni

They came from all directions, from frantic finance in Chicago, from bridge construction in Pennsylvania, from struggling newspapers in West Virginia, from the wards in a St. Louis hospital, from farms and banks in the Dark and Bloody Ground, and from wives and pouting children. Home-coming—the return of the natives.

Two days of handshaking and the constant friendly passing of the bull. Two days of searching for an old pal, who might still be in Podunk or who might be here in Lexington, and who might be here in Lexington, and who might be here in Lexington.

Grads—slowly trudging into their fraternity houses and with begging eyes looking for some one they adventured with years ago. Once they were the stars of their lodges, they were the campus big shots; now except for a dusty photograph in the chapter room, they are the forgotten men, replaced by raspy freshmen and sophisticated upperclassmen.

Home-coming—the high tide; the sandwich substitutes for the heating platter; coats become precious and scanty for where there is revelry there must be women; the excitement of the football game; the praising of that admirable fortress, Gene Myers; the gaudy dazzling costumes of the 'Bama band; and the dancing swarm in the gym where reigned smoke and strangers.

And if you missed it this year, the annual madcap fellowship will return again next fall. After another look at graduates and the love they have for Kentucky, we hope never to grow old and never to leave this school.

Tridelt Mary Scott is ready to go haywire if she soon doesn't choose between ATO Paul Ledridge and Delta Chi Jimmie Smee. Both of these rogues have been swooning her with attention and both have applied equal pressure with identical results. Ledridge and Smee are fashioned by Esquire, they have clever lines, and are campus luminaries. Providing no one gets provoked, Miss Scott, I suggest you keep on stringing them. There's safety in numbers.

No wonder good men dislike women. We have on the campus a Popularity Clinic, a laboratory in which they change a blank wallflower into an intellectual charming Ginger Rogers in four easy lessons. Strangely, the chairman or House Doctor is Dorothy Wunderlich. The clinic in its attempt to reform nature, met last night and discussed, according to the schedule, "When And How To Do It."

Phisig Sag Kash, ex-Kernel god, who now works on a paper in Norton, Va., has pinned Shan Seidel, a night club heater who canced with the originator of the Carioia in the jazz dugouts of New York and Boston last season.

Red Hagan may have been the man of the week at the Cedar Village last week, but the lovely Lexy Sexy Potter was the head man at Patterson hall. The gals in the dorm state that he is the cutest gorilla they've ever flirted with.

If you don't see Alphasgams Betty and Frances Murphy, Velma Hardesty, Mabel Payton, and Margaret Cooper bouncing around with their usual playboys this week, it's not because they have suddenly become unpopular. Last week they found existing in the house a little dull so they indulged in some slightly immoderate behavior to gladden things up. Whoopie! Their crusade against an uninteresting life was rewarded with a week's campus for Betty, Velma, and Mabel, while Frances and Margaret will be imprisoned only this week-end. That's the penalty of disturbing the sound solid lives of most people.

Thanksgiving Day will not only bring turkey and stuff for Chio pledge Martha Kelly and Lt. Milton McGruder, of the U. S. Marines and who a year ago won all the R. O. T. C. honors here. On that day they will promise to love, honor, and obey until debt do us part.

Just one week ago Lambda Chi John Morgan pinned Nancy Orrel. It took the military sponsor from Western State just one week to read the score and wise up. Lambda Chi John Morgan now has his pin simmering on his vest. Proving that the theory of retaliation yields nothing but unnatural bunk.

Joe Huddleston regularly courts Elaine Harper. Two dances ago the girl that Joe is supposedly engaged to strode into town. He had a date with Harper, who could easily take the part of one of the mads in Louis XVII's court, to attend the dance. But Joe's fiancée, Dorothy Hazel, broke up that combination, temporarily, giving Dick Chauvet a chance to step in and show Elaine an unexpected grand time. And that's an example of a love mixup that worked out well.

SEEING SPORT STUFF

By JOE QUINN
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

There is not much to be said of the most recent Kentucky setback at the hands of Alabama. The Wildcats played their best game of the season defensively and tried hard every minute, but their best was not enough to stem the Tide in its last half sweep.

When the desperate Kentuckians threw Alabama back four times in the opening half, from the very shadows of the goal posts, 'Cat rosters took heart. But the precision offense of Alabama came back after the rest only the more determined to make their opportunities count. And two quick, clean thrusts through the line by little Joe Riley finally rang the bell and the Wildcats were beaten.

Kentucky was able to give but one convincing demonstration of offense and that assault halted only a foot from the final stripe. The loss of that touchdown probably meant a lot to the Wildcats. A score at that stage of the battle might have rekindled the blaze of determination which had started to die down after Alabama had taken a lead.

Aside from that one sustained exhibition of attacking brilliance, the 'Cats were never a serious threat while the Tide was constantly knocking at the touchdown door.

Alabama's line worked perfectly in front of the speedy 'Bama backs. The forward wall of the Crimson Tide is always a well-drilled unit and this one was no exception. Not as big as some of its predecessors, yet it was well grounded in the fundamentals of blocking, tackling and charging. Quick to get started, the Alabama line appeared to have the jump on Kentucky all afternoon and made the work of the ball carriers easy with big openings.

Joe Riley was easily the best of the ball toters that Coach Thomas used. He was overshadowed two years ago by the great Dixie Howell and last year all eyes were centered on All-American Riley Smith, but this season the diminutive Riley has come into his own. He started like a sprinter coming off the mark and once underway was hard to bring down. In his two touchdown travels, he used no change of pace but his peculiar weaving body motion offered very little target for the Kentucky defenders.

For the Wildcats, Gene Myers, as usual, was the shining light on defense. He played one of the best games of his brilliant career last Saturday, until he was carried from the fray with an injured nose late in the game. Because of his consistently outstanding exhibitions, Myers justly deserves a position on any all-star team in the country and seems destined to land on many.

And two other seniors stood out in their last chance against the Tide. Bert Johnson led the 'Cat offense, such as it was, and almost scored singlehandedly. It was Johnson who carried the ball inside the 'Bama 10-yard line and it was Johnson who yielded to the weight of numbers in a last desperate slash into the center of the line to bring the ball only a foot from the goal.

Captain Stanley Nevers, too, gave a fine performance. He was seldom taken out of play and made plenty of tackles on the left side of the line besides breaking through interference on several occasions to throw a carrier for a loss.

Alabama certainly deserved to win. Last Saturday, at least, they were a superior ball team and while Kentucky put up a great defense, the 'Bama held the edge. It was not a case of jinx but of ability and the Tide had it. That we will have to admit.

danger. From this point on, Kentucky never seriously threatened to score. All hopes the 'Cats had for victory seemed to ebb away after they had come so near to scoring, and failed.

As the fourth quarter started, Alabama began another advance down the field. Using straight line plays, the Crimson Tide rolled down to Kentucky's 17-yard line. On the first play from this point, Riley dashed through tackle the remaining 17 yards to the goal line despite being hit by three Kentucky backs. The extra point was again kicked by Kilgore. Neither team seriously threatened to score in the remaining 7 minutes as each coach sent in numerous substitutes.

The difference between the two eleven Saturday was Alabama's charging line, and little Joe Riley, one of the fastest backs ever to appear on Grid Field. Kentucky's backs had little chance to get into the open due to the terrible blocking of the Wildcat linemen. Bert Johnson was the only Kentucky back to gain with any consistency.

Myers Outstanding
Gene Myers, center from Harlan, proved to the satisfaction of everyone that he is one of the greatest players to have ever worn the Blue and White of Kentucky. Myers, backing up the line, sometimes made four or five consecutive tackles. He tackled hard and ferocious, stopped line plunges, end runs, and intercepted two Alabama passes. Without Myers, the Crimson Tide would probably have scored more touchdowns. If ever a player deserved All-American rating, it is Kentucky's Gene Myers. Alabama scored its second touchdown after Gene was removed with a broken nose.

Game statistics show the overwhelming superiority of the Alabama eleven. Alabama gained 361 yards to 90 for Kentucky. The Crimson Tide completed one pass out of nine attempts for a six yard gain while Kentucky completed five passes out of ten attempts to gain 53 yards. Each team had two passes intercepted.

battle were the formal dedication before the game, of the flagpole, erected by SuKy and special numbers during the half by the "Best Band in Dixie" and Alabama's "Million Dollar Band." The band also passed boxes to raise funds for making the trip to Tennessee at Thanksgiving this year. The flagpole was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies, the band playing the national anthem and "My Old Kentucky Home" while an American flag and a flag of Kentucky were raised.

INTRAMURAL

By BILLY EVANS

In the most important touch football game played to date, the Sigma Chi emerged the victors over the S. A. E. representatives by virtue of a last-minute first down. This first down, the only one registered by either team during the entire fracas, was their margin of victory. Playing the game on a wind-swept field with the temperature hovering around the freezing point, neither team was able to show its real ability.

Both organizations showed a splendid defense in this battle but were sadly lacking on the offense. Poor passing was very prominent throughout the entire game and the S. A. E.'s were kept constantly in their own territory by the long kicking of Symphon.

A. T. O.'s Brilliant

In the lower bracket, the A. T. O.'s flashed the most brilliant offensive bit of team play shown yet by defeating the Deltas 12 to 0. Making first downs frequently and scoring on two occasions, the winners proved themselves a team that must be taken into consideration before the Fraternity championship is crowned.

The only Independent game played to date resulted in a 6 to 0 victory for the Grandstanders over the Penelopes. The winner of the Independent division will meet the Fraternity division winner in a game to determine the University championship.

Old Rivals Clash

The feature game of the coming week will bring together the Phi Taus and Sigma Chis, age-old rivals in Intramurals. To date the Phi Taus have shown superior offensive powers but are somewhat weaker on the defensive than their opponents.

The interest manifested by the various groups at these games gives evidence of the popularity of this newly adopted Intramural game. It is practically assured now that touch football will become a permanent part of the Intramural program for the coming years.

Shop Sights

By BETTY EARLE

This week we'll fool you and start off with men's styles! We find they're important, too, but we don't always give them the proper attention. Well, gentlemen, we'll try not to slight you anymore.

Graves-Cox has quite a stock of ideas as to just how the well-dressed college man should look. First of all, they suggest an Arrow shirt for perfect comfort as well as for looks. They are guaranteed to keep that fresh, crisp appearance about the collar all day long. The patterns are the smartest you have ever seen! The colors are new, stripes are in, and the designs are most original, we promise you. The fabrics are the long-wearing kind—you'll never tire of them because they are in form fit Mitoga and sanforized-shrunk.

Across the street at Kaufman's we find some mighty fine top coats for you fellows. "Varsity Town" is their name and the price is $25. You may choose the more dressy type of coat with the half belt or the completely swaggy over a wrap-around idea and loop-over belt. Perhaps you'd prefer no belt at all—then you'll select the model which buttons down the front, has a small collar, big, roomy pockets, and a warm, plaid lining. Drop in and take a look at them—it's going to be cold here pretty soon now.

Slipper satins, moires, taffetas, and velvets—choose your own, young lady, right down at Purcell's. With a dance each Saturday night, you won't be wanting to wear the same frock every time. Some have the lovely new Colonial necklines; others have ruffles to live up to the hemline, and sequins trim still other styles with "swing time" skirts! The colors are royal blue, cardinal red, candlelight, white, rose, green, and black. The sizes are yours—12 to 20, and the prices are right, $10.95, $16.95, and $19.95. One we particularly liked was a very high-waisted model with a pleated top, caught up on the shoulder with small bows to match the belt. The skirt in front was quite plain while in the back it, too, was pleated.

While you're looking for dresses that will really fit, see those in the junior shop, a new department opened especially for us on the third floor of Wolf-Wiles. We can't possibly tell you all about it, but they have anything you want—crepes, wools—for Sunday or for the classroom. You must just see for yourself, so 'bye for now.
